Determined to concentrate on the "things we love" - as co-founder of Rinomina Daniela Baldelli puts it - I am glad to see my work as part of the recently launched series of exhibitions at the new project space in Paris-Marais. In turn, I would like to wish Rinomina, "Courage et bonne chance!"

About Equivalences: I like the idea of making the carefree things in our everyday lives resonate with simplicity. I am showing a video, shot one day last year at nightfall, first screened at Objects in a Room, curated by Zoe Miller and Eli Skatvedt at Kunstraum Kreuzberg Bethanien. Preparing the current exhibition gave me occasion to talk again about my work with Ines Lindner. The encounter with the art critic generated a sensitive commentary on my work and a diagram that I propose in place of an artist's statement.

On the bookshelf of Rinomina, I'll also be presenting Delfine 83 a 'print-on-demand' which belongs to the series: Away with all pages, which do not interest me.

I am also glad to participate in the group show Bonnes Choses, thus granting occasion to meet familiar and unknown colleagues and to spend some time at the house built by Bruno Taut. The house brings to mind a harmonious place to live. Angela Junkorn (owner of the house) is determined to dedicate it to art and culture - "Mercie, Angela!". The participating artists are asked to provide a statement through their works of their understanding of Beauty. Looking at the works I propose - the video of a sparkling flame, functioning as a generator of golden spots on the screen and a branch cast in copper - I realize that Beauty happens in my work when I reach at things vanishing.

I met lots of indomitable people during the last few months, even Barbara Steveni and Garth Evans (this all makes me happy to live in Berlin). I met Frau Wagner who has revealed herself to be an indispensable supporter of my idea to sell magic wands at Berlin art fairs. She is determined to support my work proposing it temporally at her show room.

It has also been a pleasure to continue working with Pierre Granoux and Lage Egal: he is now contact person for the collection of my silkscreen prints.

I am including a link to the city of Minden where it is possible to see some pictures of the successfully executed ritual in public space „Rechts Links“.
